

WHY ARE SNAKES IMPORTANT?

(or: why don't just kill them all?)

More info:
www.hhiss.com
Or contact:
info@hhiss.com

In 1 year, two rodents can have more than 20,000 offspring!!! They will eat our crops and our food storage.
Snakes eat rodents, sometimes a whole family in one meal!

Snakes are an important food source for many animals such as birds of prey, hornbills and egrets, as well as mongooses and many other mammals.

Ants and termites dig holes and damage our foundation

Blind Snakes and Worm Snakes eat ants, termites and their eggs!

Important part of the ecosystem!!

The venom of snakes is being researched and used for development of medication